hm85 Solo

Designed for both contract and domestic environments, Simon Pengelly's generously proportioned Solo/hm85 armchair is characterised by the meticulous detailing of its sculptural form, skilful tailoring and elegant finishing. Available in either low-back or high-back versions, the steel framework incorporating a sprung seat is encapsulated in a high-density cmhr foam moulding.

Footstools are also available.

Multi-tone upholstery is available - inside and outside panels can be upholstered in different fabrics. When specified in leather the inside panels can be upholstered in supple leather, with outer panels in fabric.

One of the most prolific and wide-ranging designers working in the British furniture industry today, Pengelly has developed products with many of the UK and Europe's leading contemporary furniture manufacturers. Born on Oxfordshire in 1967, by the age of fifteen he had become an award-winning cabinet maker. He studied at Rycotewood College and Kingston Polytechnic, graduating in 1988. After working with Conran Design Group and Habitat, Pengelly started his own design company in 1996.

His first collaboration with Hitch Mylius was hm83 in 2004, soon followed by hm85 and hm86. The hm87 cocoon chair was launched in 2012. A pragmatic approach to problem solving and his affinity with materials and processes have attracted briefs that have resulted in award-winning designs characterised by Pengelly's mix of understated design, engineering and innovation.
